

A BETTER WORD / Hebrews 12:24

In contrast to Abel's blood, Christ's blood made a "good word" for us and our salvation.

Good words are clear.

Abel's death left the idea of justice quite ambiguous.

Jesus' death showed clearly the mercy of God to you.

Good words are complete.

Abel's death was unresolved.

Jesus' death was followed by resurrection.

Good words make powerful messages.

Abel's death was tragic. Yet no one says, "I'm a follower of Abel."

Jesus' death was also tragic, yet it saved us. Millions follow him.

Good words explain confusion and point to hope.

Abel's death left humanity with no hope.

Jesus has the most wonderful words of hope for you today. Listen, believe, and obey.
